LESS IMPORTANT news comes from Berlin says Chancellor Hitler will dress his police hereafter in red stripes and gold lace. That will please them. Fine ornament. Kings knew long ago, when they put fancy uniforms and feathers on their fighting soldiers, with music leading them, leaving peasants and ditchdiggers in their rags.

But red stripes and gold braid will not make better policemen. Bulletproof vests would be better.

NEW YORK STATE is trying to stop the crime wave, financed and built up by prohibition folly. Governor Lehman signs a bill making it a felony for any but a police officer to possess or sell a machine gun, favorite, efficient weapon of crime.

Such a law, well meant, will mean that criminals only will have submachine guns, just as prohibition always meant whisky only for bootleggers.

AS THAT LINE IS WRITTEN comes announcement of President Roosevelt's decision to let American gold producers sell their precious metal where they can get the best price for it. The original ruling compelled American gold miners to deliver all gold to Uncle Sam's mint, taking for it, per ounce, in depreciated paper dollars, the price paid when our dollar was gold and worth 100 cents. The treasury will receive gold, allowing owners to sell it abroad or at home for as many dollars per ounce as they can get.

This rule will help gold producers and be far better than allowing gold "mats" or concentrates to be shipped abroad, giving the work of refining to foreign workers and smelters. It will mean, also, that United States gold will be retained out of the country, building up the gold reserves of foreign countries. How much, if at all, that will hurt this country depends on our final gold attitude.

It sounds a little like drifting back to the old yellow basis. If we do not return to our golden calf, Uncle Sam certainly should be more liberal with his dollar supply. Is making new paper dollars more scarce than the old gold ones. Watch after the President's announcement stocks that had gone off went up again in the last few minutes.

DEPUTY TO RELATE STORY OF SLAYING

Expected To Tell What Lamson Said After Finding of Body.

By The Associated Press

SAN JOSE, Calif., Aug. 30—What Sherwood A. Lamson allegedly said to police officers when they arrived at the Stanford campus home last May 30 to find the nude body of his wife in the bathtub full of water and how he acted in the face of their questioning was expected to come out in the testimony today at his trial for her murder.

Among the witnesses under call was Deputy Sheriff John Moore, who shortly after going to the home of the tragedy reported having heard Lamson say:

"My God! Why did I ever marry her?"

The state completed the presentation of the first phase of its case yesterday with the introduction of a series of blood-stained articles and clothing, taken from the bungalow last May 30. The list, including bloody house slippers, golden gloves, a bath towel and bath mat and the blood-stained pajamas and bathrobe of the defendant, were identified by Deputy Sheriff Earle Hamilton as they were held up for the jury to view. Under the cot of the nurse maid in the back bedroom, Hamilton said he found a pair of white tennis shoes, white sox, blue trousers and blue shirt. All showed, in varying degree, stains of blood, he identified.

Dramatic moments of the day included the display to the court and the defendant of greatly enlarged pictures taken of Mrs. Lamson lying in the bathtub, the blood covered floor and splattered walls. Lamson looked at the pictures and then turned away.

F. D. ASKS WHY FORD FAILS TO ACCEPT CODE

President Silent on Possible Move After Requesting Report from Johnson.

ACTION BELIEVED LIKELY

Despite Fact Roosevelt Has Issued No Threats Against Manufacturer.

By The Associated Press

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 30—President Roosevelt has asked General Hugh S. Johnson, industrial administrator, for a report on the failure of Henry Ford to enroll under the new working agreement for the automobile industry.

Mr Roosevelt wants the latest news on this before he departs tomorrow for a vacation cruise back to Washington and there is indication he is considering action, although the President is saying nothing about that and making no threats.

In talking with General Johnson it was stated no word had been received at Washington so far from the Michigan auto maker. Inquiries here about the use of the drastic licensing power to impose the NRA working code on Ford brought the answer that no detailed consideration has been given so far to this piece of authority.

Mr. Roosevelt has relied entirely so far on the voluntary cooperation of the people and he has formally declared this to have succeeded. The agreement fixing working hours and wages for the gigantic automobile industry was signed by the President late last week and it has the support of every other branch of this industry except Ford who is remaining silent.

Getting ready for a few days at sea on his return to the capital, the President expects to announce the members of oil planning and conservation committee to work with Secretary Ickes, the oil administrator, in governing this industry under its new working code. Fourteen other members are to be chosen.

Ford Given Until Sept. 5 To Sign Up

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30—Henry Ford has until Sept. 5 to sign the automobile code of competition if he wants a blue eagle for his motor cars.

This was emphasized again today by national recovery officials who said they had yet to receive word from the Detroit manufacturer reported to be vacationing in Canada.

Hugh S. Johnson, NRA chieftain, told newspapermen yesterday that "I think the American people will crack down on him (Ford) when the blue eagle is on other cars."

Johnson made it clear that Ford must sign the code—effective Sept. 5—to get the blue eagle no matter if he should announce a schedule of higher wages and shorter hours than proposed in the trade charter submitted by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. Ford is not a member of this organization.

Would Quit Buying

The government will not buy any more automobiles from Ford unless he obtains a blue eagle.

"The government," said the NRA leader, "has signified its intentions of buying only from those industries which displayed the blue eagle."

Asked by newsmen if Ford conforms to the code's wage and hour provisions but does not sign whether he could get the blue eagle emblem, Johnson replied he could

ROOSEVELT IS READY TO FINISH VACATION

Issues Order Relaxing Gold Embargo; Safeguards National Supply.

By The Associated Press

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 30—President Roosevelt cleaned his desk today, well satisfied that the new order for America was on its way, and prepared for the return to the capital.

He regarded the relaxation in the gold embargo permitting new mined ore to be sold in the higher markets abroad as giving to the producers here a share in the opportunity for better times.

Mr. Roosevelt late yesterday issued two orders, one allowing the sale in foreign markets of gold mined in the United States and the other stringently binding the anti-hoarding regulations to safeguard the national supply.

He made sure this permission to give gold producers the advantage of the higher prices available abroad would also be shared by the refiners and his two orders made this possible.

Tomorrow afternoon he boards the yacht of Vincent Astor, distant relative, for a long week-end on the seas, arriving in Washington on the Potomac the night of Labor day or the next morning.

CHIEF NAMED AS PUNCHER

But Police Chief Merely Smiles When Questioned by Reporters.

SECRECY IS MAINTAINED

Long Still Insists He Was Ganged by About Four Men.

By The Associated Press

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Aug. 30—The Brooklyn Eagle says today it has learned from an authoritative source that the man who smacked Senator Huey Long at a Long Island party Saturday night is Chief of Police Steve Webber of Port Washington, a former boxer and army drill sergeant. Chief Webber, when asked about the matter, smiled and denied he had struck Long.

Chief Webber, a man of more than 200 pounds who stands six feet one in his stocking feet, has a local reputation as a skilled boxer and trainer of amateur boxers.

Secrecy Maintained

The Sands Point club in the outskirts of Port Washington, where the senator was knocked down by a man whose identity the Louisiana Kingfish did not learn, is within the police district under command of Chief Webber.

Since the fight, concerning which the utmost secrecy was maintained by members of the club and guests, at the charity function to which Senator Long was invited, there has been continual speculation as to the identity of the man who laid the southern senator low.

For a time there was general belief that a prominent New York architect was the man, but he finally satisfied questioners that this was a mistake.

Long Tells of Gang

Chief Webber was said to have shown little surprise when he was told the spotlight of curiosity had swung upon him but he insisted that his denial be used if a story was carried. He grinned as he made this stipulation.

In Milwaukee, where Senator Long had gone before news of the fracas leaked out, Long issued a statement in which he said he had been "ganged" in the club wash-

WET CAUSE SWEEPS WASHINGTON VOTERS

Two-Thirds Mark in Drive for Repeal Reached by States.

By The Associated Press

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 30—Two-thirds of the 36 states needed to erase the Eighteenth amendment from the Constitution were lined up today, Washington following 23 others into the repeal column. None of the states which have voted favored retention of prohibition.

Only one legislative district, the ninth, in rural eastern Washington, voted dry on the basis of available returns. The district will have only two of the 99 delegates who will meet Oct. 3, to ratify the decision of the voters.

The popular vote from 1,926 of the state's 2,682 precincts rolled up a total of 216,064 wet ballots to 122,389 cast for dry candidates. The statewide total, however, had no bearing on the outcome, as delegates were chosen by legislative districts, an election arrangement, which wet leaders attacked during the campaign.

Republicans contended the district method was put over by a dry bloc in the senate which they alleged forced this concession as the price of their support in providing for the repeal election.

Rescuers Strive To Reach Three Trapped on Peak

By The Associated Press

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Aug. 30—Expert mountain climbers today scaled the almost perpendicular face of Wall cliff mountain in a determined effort to reach three Plattsburgh youths trapped for nearly 24 hours without food or water on a narrow ledge with a sheer drop of 400 feet below them.

The youths are William La Due, Robert Glenn and Tyler Gray, all between the ages of 18 and 21. When they reached the ledge yesterday during a climb they found they could neither proceed higher nor retrace their steps.

While rescuers were helpless during the night, the boys huddled together to seek shelter from chilling blasts that swept the cliff. The temperature was down to the freezing point and they were in their shirt sleeves.

Rescue parties set out from the Adirondack lodge, seven miles away, and the Lake Placid club late in the afternoon after Robert La Due, brother of William, had made a dash through the mountains to report their predicament. He had remained behind while they scaled the cliff, and went for help when he saw they could not get down.

The youths were sighted by the pilot of an airplane sent out ahead of the searchers to locate them. The mountain they were climbing was far removed from the nearest settlement and could be reached only by walking. The pilot said they apparently were safe unless they attempted to climb down.

EVANGELIST SHOOTS YOUTHS AT SERVICE

Canton Preacher Uses Gun To Halt Disturbance.

By The Associated Press

CANTON, O., Aug. 30—Two young men were under treatment in a hospital here today after they had been wounded with a pistol in the hands of Rev. Clarence Morgan, evangelist, following a disturbance at a tent revival meeting last night.

No charges have been filed against Rev. Morgan. He had been deputized by police after lodging complaints that a gang of youths had been attempting to break up his services.

The wounded men are James Serra, 20, and Irvin Lemon, 23, both of Canton. Serra was accused by Rev. Morgan of participating in a disturbance. Lemon was wounded by a stray shot fired while Serra was attempting to take the gun from the evangelist.

Serra was shot through the hand and Lemon through the arm.

Loan Company Meeting Adjourned Without Vote

Chairman Halts Session; Directors Proceed With Plans for New Meeting and Election.

A meeting of stockholders of the Home Building, Savings & Loan Co. called for the purpose of electing directors to serve until next January, came to a sudden and unexpected adjournment at 3 p. m. today without a vote having been taken on two slates of directors nominated yesterday.

Immediately afterward, the present board of directors of the company, who had asserted that the proceedings of the meeting up to that time had been illegal, began arrangements to conduct what they regarded as a legal election of directors.

Adjournment was voted by a majority of the 300 stockholders present after R. E. O'Conner, who has headed a group of stockholders seeking removal of the present board of loan company officers, announced that he was withdrawing from his fight today. He asserted that it was useless to take a vote on the two slates of nominees, one slate named by the group Mr O'Conner headed and the other which includes the present directors, saying that the group he headed was certain to lose.

Up to the time of the adjournment, Mr. O'Conner had presided over the stockholders' meeting as chairman, although his election to that position had been questioned by attorneys who contended that all proceedings under his direction were illegal.

Object to Method

The directors had contended that a chairman for the meeting should have been voted into office on the basis of stock, rather than by a vote of the majority present at the meeting. Mr. O'Conner was elected by a majority of those present, on the basis of one vote for each stockholder rather than one vote for each share of stock, up to 20, held by each stockholder.

Mr. O'Conner advised stockholders to adjourn "sine die" with the announced object of bringing the meeting to an absolute close and making it impossible for the present directors to conduct an election without giving another written notice to all shareholders two weeks in advance of the session.

In calling for an election of directors following adjournment of the earlier meeting, the present officers of the Home loan voiced the opinion that it would not be necessary to give written notice to the stockholders in advance of another meeting. They explained that the first meeting had been called for yesterday, and had not been legally adjourned.

J. Malcolm Strelitz, a stockholder, asked that the motion for adjournment be voted on on the basis of stock, rather than by a majority vote of those present. This was refused.

Although no official announcement was made, it was understood that a vote on the basis of stock would have given stockholders favorable to the present board control. Had a vote on the basis of stock been taken, the adjournment voted by the stockholders present probably would have been defeated. It also was presumed that, had Mr. O'Connor while acting as chairman called a vote on the two slates of directors, the present board would have been reelected.

This afternoon's session lending up to the adjournment lasted about one hour. Most of the time was taken up by Mr. O'Connor in reviewing his activities in connection with the loan company.

Severed Artery Results in Almost Instant Death of New York Man.

KENTON, Aug. 30—A severed artery in the left leg resulted in almost instant death to Elvin Wilkinson, 23, of Cohocton, N. Y., when he was injured in an automobile accident one mile south of here last midnight. His sister, Mrs. Wilbur Carder, 26, of here, who yesterday adopted his two-year-old son, Charles Elvin, suffered shock and minor bruises. She is a patient in Antonio hospital here.

Kenneth Everitt, 22, of Cohocton, Stephen Nicholson, 25, of Avoca, N. Y., and Robert Wallland of Kenton, suffered minor injuries. Mr. Carder, riding with friends in a car following the Wilkinson car, picked up his wife and took her to the hospital.

The persons in both cars were returning from a street dance in Ridgeway. At the point where the road joins the Kenton-Mt. Victory pike, Everett, who was not familiar with the road, failed to negotiate a sharp curve and the car went into a ditch, striking a large power pole. Mr. Wilkinson bled to death before the ambulance arrived to remove him to the hospital.

Mr. Wilkinson, Everitt and Nicholson have been visiting Mr. Wilkinson's mother, Mrs. Harry Holland of here, and planned to return to Cohocton this morning. Plans for the funeral will not be made until his father, M. E. Wilkinson of Cohocton, arrives. Mr. Wilkinson and his wife are separated.

Employment Situation in Ohio Improves, State Director Declares.

The blue eagle of the NRA extended its domain into thousands of American homes and hundreds of previously unsigned business places as more than 1,000,000 volunteer workers in the city, state and nation marched forward today in their drive to Nira-nize the nation.

This week's efforts, in most communities, are centering around consumers' drives as the federal government continues its efforts to enlist the cooperation of the housewives.

Marion's consumers drive, launched yesterday, was progressing steadily today with comparatively few refusals to sign consumers agreements, leaders reported. Activities of the Marion workers were part of a general house-to-house canvass throughout Ohio.

Drive leaders estimated 75,000 have been put to work in Ohio, 2,000,000 in the nation, since July 31 under the NRA program.

Hairdressers and lumber dealers met in separate meetings here last night to discuss their codes and study their requirements under the NRA.

Marion Consumers Pledge Support

Workers in Marion's NRA consumers drive, launched yesterday, found many Marion housewives waiting for the opportunity to pledge their support to the nation-wide program for recovery, leaders reported this morning.

In some few instances, however, persons refused to sign the consumers cards, it was reported. A majority of the refusals, workers said, were traceable to misunderstandings. Further efforts will be made to explain clearly to housewives the intent and operating plan of the NRA to convince them they should sign consumers cards and "do their part," drive leaders said.

Although definite figures were not available, it was estimated that several hundred persons had signed consumers cards during the first day of the campaign. The drive is scheduled to end Friday, with a final report expected Friday night, Mrs. J. C. Ackerman, city chairman, said.

An instance of the misunderstanding existing in some homes regarding the NRA was reported by a worker who said a Marion woman refused to sign a card because the industry in which her husband was employed had not yet signed the employment agreement or a code. She feared her husband would lose his job if she signed before his

LEGISLATURE BALKS AT PLAN TO RECESS

Joint Committee Tackles Parochial School Problem.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 30 — Refusing to recess pending formulation of a school financing program, the legislature marked time today while the joint taxation committee tackled the perplexing problem of parochial schools.

Ohio's parochial schools were described as "faced with an extreme financial emergency" by representatives who appeared before the joint committee to plea for state aid today.

These schools, said Thomas J. Duffy of Columbus, former chairman of the state industrial commission, are asking $2,000,000 annually for the next two years to help bring them out of current financial straits.

Duffy, and Attorney John C. Dempsey of Cincinnati, who spoke on the legal aspects of the request, insisted parochial schools are not asking for any of the money now raised by taxation for the public schools. They said they are asking for a portion of any new taxes to be levied for school purposes.

Claiming the Catholic population of the state to be about one-fifth of the total, Duffy contended "no non-Catholic will be contributing

Settlement of Open Shop Dispute Big Achievement

BY BYRON PRICE
(Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

In none of its manifold activities has the NRA displayed a greater genius for conciliation than in its sudden settlement of the bitter dispute over the open shop.

For weeks leaders of labor and industry had been so wrought up over this that they could not discuss it without raising their voices. But when the ruling came down, both sides not only accepted it but praised it.

What the ruling did, in effect, was to leave it to the employes of any industry to decide for themselves what kind of union they would have.

The labor men liked this because it appeared to them to mean the end of the hated "company union" system under which they charged that the steel and other industries controlled their employes through local unions dominated by company officials.

The industrialists liked it because they saw in it an effective barrier against American Federation of Labor organizers who had been charged with telling non-union employes that the law required them to join the federation.

There is, of course, the possibility that differing interpretations of the ruling will collide at some future time, causing the NRA a new batch of troubles; but the fact remains that for the present critical moment, at least, this very potent source of controversy has disappeared from the picture.

Perseverance Profitable

This result was not accomplished without great worry and effort. Dozens of formulas were put on paper tentatively, and torn up, before the right one was conceived.

At one time, when the issue came to its first test in the making of the steel code, General Johnson was inclined to accept a proposition of the employers under which they would have been authorized affirmatively to eliminate the open shop and company union system if they chose.

For the fact that this provision was not accepted organized labor probably owes its thanks to Donald Richberg the NRA counsel who for years had been attorney for the railway labor unions. He stuck to his guns throughout the long fight, insisting that under the language of the law no such qualification could be included in a code.

Richberg's other services to labor since he came to Washington have not been much advertised, but in view of his standing with the White House, and his present position in the NRA, they are important.

Just after his appointment to his present position was announced, the railways and their employes disagreed over a wage increase. Richberg not only asked President Roosevelt to get the case as speedily as possible into the hands of Railroad Coordinator Eastman, but he served notice privately he would not go near his new office at the NRA unless and until the government found a solution for the rail dispute.

He had a far larger part in drawing up the railway compromise agreement than ever was disclosed.

Coal as a Stimulant

Aside from technicalities of the law, some very potent material considerations figured in the under-surface discussions which brought the open shop dispute to its conclusion.

One powerful force on the side of labor was the situation in the soft coal industry in Pennsylvania. With the strike there settled for the moment, NRA officials were told forcefully that nothing could prevent a new and worse outbreak if any open shop provision were written into the coal code.

The employers, as well as the government, seemed impressed with this danger and content to make concessions to avoid it.

SEES 3 MILLION BACK ON FARM

But How Many Will Stay There, O. S. U. Man Does Not Predict.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 30—An Ohio State university professor today essayed an estimate at the number of people who have gone back to the farm—three million, says M. B. Hammond, of the university's department of economics.

He is unwilling, however, to predict they will stay there.

The city dweller who has left unemployment to go back to raising his own food for a while is torn between two claims.

"In spite of the low incomes received by those who have gone from city to county, the feeling of greater security which comes to a family able to raise its own food will make a strong appeal to those who remember their precarious conditions while unemployed.

"On the other hand, those who are dissatisfied with the life of a farmer, and especially those who had never before lived on a farm, will probably take the first opportunity to return to the city when they can find employment there," Prof. Hammond says.

But what he sees is a compromise. Sections around large industrial cities will spring up with families taking small tracts where they can raise garden produce and keep a few animals.

The tendency of many industrial plants to move out of large cities or to establish branch plants in small towns and rural areas, where rents are cheaper and there is more ground, will have a bearing on the result.

CIRCUS STAR TO DISTRIBUTE NEW PHONE BOOKS FRIDAY

The world has never produced a more fearless wild animal trainer than Clyde Beatty, a Chillicothe, O., boy. The youthful trainer, who appears in person at each performance, will give battle to 40 lions and tigers, when the Hagenbeck-Wallace circus comes to Marion on Thursday, Sept. 7.

No other trainer has ever dared enter an arena with 40 jungle-bred lions and tigers. During his act, he is entirely surrounded by the savage and treacherous beasts, in fact, he has barely sufficient space to move about in the large circular all-steel cage. One mis-step would, no doubt, prove fatal. Beatty, however, is possessed with iron nerve and courage, and is certain of his power of control over the snarling jungle beasts.

ANOTHER LANGUAGE BROADWAY SUCCESS, SHOWS AT PALACE

Rose Franken's Broadway stage success, "Another Language," will be shown Thursday, Friday and Saturday on the Palace screen, with as interesting a cast as has been assembled in some time.

Helen Hayes and Robert Montgomery are starred in this story of the oppressive effect of a middle-class family upon the happiness of a young girl who marries into it, a stranger to the customs of the household.

The picture is one of the last that the late Louise Closser Hale, grand character actress of Hollywood, made before her sudden death. E. H. Griffith, director, ruled that the length of an individual speech in a motion picture scene should not exceed 20 words, because "audiences lose interest in too much conversation," so those who see this picture probably will see more acting and hear less talking than in the usual talkie.

NOW'S THE TIME TO BUY A NEW HOLLAND HEATING SYSTEM!
PRICES WILL NEVER BE LOWER
ACT NOW AND SAVE

TAKE advantage of today's low prices. Have your Holland Vaporaire Heating System installed now—at a real saving—and get exceptional value.

Does your present furnace burn too much fuel? Does it leak smoke or gas? Are some rooms hard to heat—others too hot? Let a Holland heating engineer study your heating problem without obligation.

There's a Holland for every size of home—every pocket-book. Each system is individually designed for the residence it heats and installed under direct factory supervision. Get the facts and you'll get a Holland.

● HUMIDITY AND CIRCULATION
Heat alone is not comfort. Artificially warmed air must be scientifically circulated and humidified. Holland provides a refreshing, stimulating indoor atmosphere by properly warming and humidifying the air and keeping it in constant circulation.

● ABSOLUTE CLEANLINESS
The Holland Heating System ends the drudgery of constant dusting and sweeping—cuts down the "wear and tear" on drapes, carpets and other furnishings by eliminating the daily accumulation of dust and grime.

● GREATER FUEL SAVING
All heat and smoke are forced to travel completely around the Holland radiator before entering the chimney—just twice as far as in ordinary practice. This principle combined with other features of Holland construction extracts maximum heat from the fuel, resulting in greater savings.

● 5-YEAR GUARANTEE
A five-year guarantee bond goes with your installation, making the factory directly responsible for your heating satisfaction.

● CONVENIENT TERMS

Special Training Planned for Some Child Workers

Here are two contrasts—a boy worker in the mines and young students trained in vocational work as a part of their education. The national recovery program would make such contrasts impossible by removing children from industry.

This is the third and last article of a series dealing with the educational problems developing in those localities where elimination of child labor under the national recovery program likely will increase enrollments.

By The Associated Press

What to teach the children whom the national recovery program is turning from labor into the classroom is a challenging consideration in some of the eastern industrial states.

It appears, for example, in Pennsylvania, where educators are planning to fit into its public school system 15,000 boys and girls from factories and mills, as well as in Connecticut, where provision must be made for 4,000 girls and boys released from labor.

Vocational Training Planned

In Pennsylvania special programs combining vocational training with academic studies are being devised at a time when state and local school finances are low.

Connecticut's 4,000 potential new pupils could be returned to school without requiring additional teachers or equipment, says N. S. Light, director of the field service of the board of education.

Girls Eager To Work

In most cases, he and other state education officials asserted, the girls in particular left school because they hated the classroom and were anxious to get out and "make money" even if only a few dollars a week.

Marcus Marks, who is in charge of the New Haven district, said he had talked to many girls who said they were girls who "just managed to pass the eighth grade" and now that they have lost their jobs because their employers are "under a code," they were going to stay home and do housework rather than go back to school with children many years younger.

Children Support Parents

He added that in other cases, protests came from parents who had come to depend on the earnings of their children.

Marks cited the case of one father, who said his daughter lost a job in a shirt factory where she earned $5 a week, the sole support of a family of ten. The father obtained a job at the same factory, but was dismissed after a few weeks as he could earn only $2 a week.

Child labor, Connecticut records show, has decreased steadily in recent years. The peak was reached during the World war period when there were 13,714 children holding work certificates in Connecticut compared with 4,000 on July 1, 1933.

Boulder dam when completed will hold enough water to supply every inhabitant of the earth 500 gallons, according to figures of a statistical engineer.

COURT NEWS

Inventory Filed

Property of the Waldorf Pharmacy Co., which recently made an assignment in probate court to Lew H. Ford, assignee, is appraised at $5,247.98 in an inventory prepared by T. A. O'Leary, L. V. Gray and J. E. Messenger. The inventory lists personal goods and chattels valued at $4,629.88, $18.10 in money and $600 in claims and accounts.

Licenses Issued

Licenses to wed have been issued in probate court to Samuel F. Pruzzo, salesman, and Dorothy F. Burnoskey, stenographer, both of Marion; Richard Nelson Reece, pressman, of 536 North Main street and Josephine M. Baer of 196 North Seffner avenue.

Old Case Reopened

Charles Blow wanted to join the navy, but had to furnish a statement that he was in his father's custody and obtain his father's signature before he could be accepted. To make this possible, attorneys reopened a 1914 divorce proceedings long enough to award the father, G. Glen Blow, of near Meeker, custody of the son, Charles, 20. The entry was made in the action in which Mildred Blow obtained a divorce from G. Glen Blow in 1914, court attaches said.

Named by Court

Margaret Ethel Busard has been named executrix of the estate of the late Charles C. Busard by Probate Judge Oscar Gast.

Divorces Granted

Two Marion women obtained divorces in common pleas court yesterday.

Mrs. Opal Watters obtained a decree from Murray Watters on ground of wilful absence. She was awarded custody of their child and $5 a week for its support.

Mrs. Catherine V. Coffey obtained a divorce from James F. Coffey on the grounds of gross neglect and extreme cruelty. Custody of their four children and $50 a month for their support also were awarded Mrs. Coffey.

Proceedings Closed

Partition proceedings brought in common pleas court by William Solomon against Ralph Solomon and others were concluded yesterday when Judge George B. Scofield approved the election of William Solomon to take the property at its appraised value of $670. The property involved is located in Pleasant township.

IN AND AROUND MARION

"Cap" Has Nira

No one can say Capt. Ira Shrock of the Marion police department is not doing his part for NRA.

During his recent vacation at the police and firemen's cottage at White's landing, on Sandusky bay, the captain put into use for the first time an outboard motor boat on which he had been working for some time.

And on the prow was this insignia, "NIRA," with the blue eagle in its usual place.

Some people have named babies after the recovery movement, and "Cap" Shrock sees no reason why a good boat should not bear the name also.

Plant Gives Surprise

A night-blooming Cereus bearing seven blossoms attracted about 50 persons to the home of Mrs. Frank Tavener of 249 Kensington place Saturday night between the hours of 11 p. m. and 2:30 a. m. The appearance of the blossoms Saturday night was something of a surprise to the owner as earlier in the day the plant showed no signs of blooming in so short a time. The extreme heat of the day and the shower Saturday afternoon hastened the blossoms, Mrs. Tavener believes. Several other buds on the stalk may bloom providing the weather remains warm, she states.

The plant is 11 or 12 years old and this summer marks the fifth year it has blossomed. Earlier in the summer the plant had several blooms. The blooms are pure white with a faint tingle of yellow.

A telephone list of persons interested in the plant is kept handy by Mrs. Tavener and the first hint of the appearance of blooms means a busy hour giving out the news.

A cast aluminum desk letter-rack, bearing the NRA insignia in patriotic colors, was presented Mayor W. C. Phillians yesterday by F. A. Green of 175 John street.

Green, who has been out of work for some time, the mayor said, fashioned the letter rack himself and decorated the sides with hunting scenes.

This morning the letter rack graced the mayor's desk in city hall.

In presenting the rack to the mayor, Green reminded him of days nearly 20 years ago when Green was a motorman on the Center street car line and the mayor was a steady customer.

Solicitor Sets Jump Record as 'Bomb' Explodes

City Solicitor Carter M. Patton set a new informal record for standing broad jumps at the city hall, set when the playboys around city hall arranged to have a small bomb explode under the hood of his automombile at a recent council meeting.

The solicitor's car was parked just outside the station while he and the city solons were grinding out new legislation and paying some of the city's bills. Two councilmen were to ride home with him after the meeting, so the jokesters tipped them off as to what to expect. Patton, however, knew nothing about what would occur when he stepped on the starter.

The bomb whistled noisily and threw off a cloud of smoke before it exploded. Mr. Patton had his feet on the running board of the car when the explosion occurred. No one measured the jump, but he was well into the center of Orchard street when he turned around to face a crowd of laughing spectators.

A New "Week"

(Will Rogers Special)

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Aug. 30—So Germany has barred Schumann-Heink. Say, if my own wife barred Shumann-Heink from anything, I would be with Schumann. A grand liberal minded soul.

Some fellow on Long Island, N. Y., in a dress suit pounced on my old friend Huey Long. Huey didn't recognize him in the disguise. Dress suits are only used in Louisiana to encase dead politicians.

By the way, did anybody ever see a United States Senator in his home state, after the night he is elected? I have met 'em all over the world when Congress was not in session, but never saw one at home. They are always making speeches about "My fine people back home," but they never want to go see 'em.

So I hereby start a movement to create another week, like apple week, prune week. It's "Meet Your Own Senator Week," and make him come home, no matter what happens to him.

Yours,

Will Rogers

and ten minutes behind Gertrude Ederle's record.

These channel swims show what terrific power of endurance nature has given to women, fighting choppy waves, strong currents cold water, and swimming violently with strain on heart and courage all the way. Women need the power, since part of their task is to produce the entire human race.

ANOTHER DEAD MAN picked up in a Brooklyn street. The usual "gang ride." The victim feels a "gun" pressed against his ribs, hears the gruff order, "Get in." He knows its meaning, but there is the gun, near his heart. He lacks instantaneous courage to refuse, struggle, shout, because of the noise, or that the bullet might not kill. He drops onto the front seat of the car, the gun still there.

A convenient, quiet spot is reached, a bullet in the back of the head, powder burning the hair, another body thrown out and another crime-world quarrel settled. How many more criminals have died at the hands of crime than at the hands of justice since the crime wave started?

AT LEAST, this country is "getting action." Twenty-four states have voted against the prohibition amendment, not one in favor of it. Nineteen NRA codes have been signed, and the new patriotic weekly with Messers Moley, brain trust "big shot"; Vincent Astor, William A. Harriman, Mrs. Mary Harriman Rumsey to guide them spiritually, and Mr. McNitt to show them how to make money, is all ready, except for choosing a name.

What name do you suggest? Tell Vincent Astor, address New York City. It must be a short name, militant, noble and pleasing to the advertiser's ear How about "The Drum," my vote for a name?

James Gordon Bennett, in a thoughtless moment, once started "The New York Herald in London." It appeared gasped, died, and the cruel London Daily Telegraph said, "The New York Herald in London has ceased publication," and added from Wordsworth's sad poem, "She lived unknown, and few could know when Lucy ceased to be."

Do not name the new weekly "Lucy."

PTER THIRTY-THREE
Colin's Victim

...remember what I told ...' Benny Malone went on. ... what I've been thinking ... along," confessed Colin ...ingly

... then listen." confided ... I'll let you in a little way ... so you'll be able to watch ... even if your back was ... until the lights went out and ... get a look at you any-

...didn't?" Colin inquired ... you plugged His ... Mulvey—Detective Sergeant ... of the homicide

... Mulvey! A prickly sensation ... down Colin's spine Tim ... Out of the night from ... a burst of ironic laughter ... to be ringing in his

... Mulvey's gun was in his ... and a man wanted for ... for the homicide squad ... ted anyone for anything ... got away! He dragged ... the cigaret he had just ...

... okay by me," he said, as ... the smoke complacently ... his nostrils. "But that ... punch never show up any-... except for one thing It looks ... Harry had made the scram all ... but what about you? This ... bird isn't going to laugh ... his pinch being queered and ... saw you, didn't he?"

Benny Malone laughed contemptu-...

"Maybe yes, maybe no, but it was ... Harry was after. He's got noth-... on me If he makes a crack it ll ... a joke Mistaken identity—get ...? He doesn't know me. I was ... in Philly tonight—with the ... boys who were at the party ... to prove it See?"

"Sure!" agreed Colin. "That's easy."

"It'll be in the papers tomorrow," said Benny Malone, "but I'll wise you up now Mulvey was after the Lynx and a fellow called Conk Eagan for a little shooting up at Nigger Joey's about a year ago when a guy named French Pete was bumped off The cops got Conk Eagan tonight, and he's down at headquarters now getting the works."

Outwardly calm Colin's brain was in a riot French Pete' Reddy had said their turn would come, but they were still useful, that it was the big noise he was after And now Detective Sergeant Muvey was on the track How far had Tim Mulvey got? Was it still only a case of the lesser breed? Or what?

'That's tough!" he deplored "Who squealed?"

Benny Malone's smile was unpleasant

An old geezer that saw the shooting and had it on his conscience, but didn't dare make a spiel" he said "He got run over or something this afternoon, and just before he croaked in the hospital tonight he got it off his chest Named the Lynx and Conk Eagan See?"

"THAT'S the way we got the story when the tip was slipped to Harry that Mulvey had a dragnet out for him. Conk was pulled before anyone could put him wise, and Harry only got the tip a minute or two before he gave you the high sign

"There's no better place for a get-away than Spinelli's if you know the tricks and Spinelli knows you so we sat tight because we didn't want to leave Spinelli's unless we had to—never mind why—and, besides, Mulvey might miss that bet, but if he showed up it would be safer if I didn't have to play a lone hand That's why you got a chance to ante. Understand?"

"I get you" said Clarkie Lunn with a crooked smile "I'm natural on that But where do I go from here?"

Benny Malone halted on a corner. "Don't you worry about that after tonight, kiddo Got a telephone number?"

Colin gave it to him

"Alright," said Benny Malone "You stick around tomorrow where you can listen to its merry chimes. I got to talk to someone first, and he's got to talk to someone else, but you'll hear from me. That okay?"

Colin nodded He remembered what Reddy had said The Mask, personally unknown to the members of his various mobs, worked through trusted lieutenants The "someone" was a lieutenant, the "someone else" was almost certainly the Mask.

"You won't have to call me twice," he jerked out with an engaging grin "I'll be listening in for you"

Benny Malone thrust out his hand.

"Take the air, then, before we get the once-over from the flatfoot on the beat," he said, as his grip tightened "So long, Clarkie—till tomorrow"

Benny Malone strode away. Colin watched the other for an instant, then started to make his way back to his room. Swift as only thought is swift, theories and possibilities stabbed at his brain.

But only one thing stood out clearly in his mind. Tim Mulvey, excepa for the fact that he now knew, through a death-bed statement, two of the lesser breed, was no nearer the Mask than he had ever been And those two, even granting that Harry the Lynx was also caught, would take the rap.

The code again It ended there None knew that better than Tim Mulvey himself Colin, therefore, had in no way wrecked the big issue in blocking Detective Sergeant Mulvey's efforts to make an arrest.

On the contrary, the crime he had unwittingly committed of impeding justice plus an assault upon a personal friend, had, it seemed, through a resultant promised initiation into one of the Masks gangs, at last definitely justified the creation of Clarkie Lunn—if Clarkie Lunn had wit enough and luck enough now to see it through

Colin made his way to his lodging house as quickly and as quietly as possible It would be only a miracle if his face were to have been remembered by a possible third member of Mulvey's party, and if that man were to pass him on the street. Nevertheless, miracles do happen and Colin had no intention of being in jail when his telephone rang next day

What would the next day bring?

IT was unbearably hot and muggy Men and women, a heterogeneous hodgepodge of nationalities, seeking refuge from the furnace temperature of crowded, airless rooms, sat on the doorsteps of tenements and houses in scarcely less hot discomfort, mopping at their faces, the men coatless with bared necks and chests the women in flimsy dishabille

Only the younger children seemingly had the energy to move—scantily clad, some frankly nude they played in the gutters The day had been one of blistering heat and even now in the waning light the pavement still seemed to shimmier

170— THE HIDDEN DOOR—

The street typical of so many another on the lower East Side, was gasping for its breath—listening eagerly to the low but still far distant, rumbling of thunder that promised if the storm did not fight shy of the city at least some measure of relief

Colin as he made his way along the street walked slowly — not wholly on account of the heat He was looking for a tobacco store that, according to the directions Benny Malone had given him, should be somewhere in this block.

He flicked the ash from his cigaret jauntily—to help camouflage his emotions. Could his mind never work in any but one groove? Could he never think except in the terms of one of his own thrillers? Well, all right! Why fight against it?

If he ever wrote again, he should, if he but availed himself of it, be able to profit vastly by virtue of personal experience! Suppose he were writing this scene in which he was not only actually taking part, but in which he was even playing the leading role and holding center stage at this precise moment? Here was a situation

Would Clarkie Lunn walk along the street steel-nerved, icy cold in determination, unmoved, immune from even a flutter of emotion, contemptuous of the risk that was sometimes run incident to thrusting one's head into the lion's mouth, or would Clarkie Lunn experience a slightly hollow feeling in the pit of his stomach and a noticeably quicker tempo in his heart pound—as Colin Hewitt, none too courageously was doing now?

Benny Malone had kept his word and had telephoned that morning. Colin had been instructed to go to a certain uptown restaurant, Marlotte's, to be exact, take lunch there alone at a table that he would find had been reserved for him, and then return to his room.

To Be Continued.

Given in Marriage

BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge regrets her decision not to join the moonlight riders when Lee Chow indicates that he, too, will stay and talk with her.

WHY HAD I been so foolish as to say I would stay at home from the proposed moonlight drive to the ocean?

This was the frantic question that first came to me, when I heard Lee Chow say that he would like to remain at the farm house, because he had some things he would like to say to me.

Was it possible for me to say that I had changed my mind, and wished to go to the beach with the others? I answered that query with a negative, almost before I was conscious of having put the question to myself The proud Oriental would never forgive what he would consider a direct insult to him

But I was chilled with terror — fantastic, I was sure, but very real to me—as I braced myself to make the obvious and courteous reply to Lee Chow.

"How very fortunate for me!" I said, forcing a smile from my lips

Hugh Protests

"You are sure you are not too fatigued to talk to me?" he queried, and managed subtly to convey in the query the expectation I would give him an assurance that I was not fatigued

"No, indeed," I assured him earnestly "I do feel too fatigued for a drive, but I am not in the least sleepy, and I shall be so glad to have you keep me company. Otherwise I am afraid I should be lonely"

An inscrutable smile played around Lee Chow's lips

"I shall try my poor best to keep you from being either lonely or bored," he said, and an involuntary shiver traveled down my spine.

I think Hugh Grantland was the only one of them all who noticed that tiny shudder Quite by chance I glanced at him as Lee Chow finished his little speech, and saw that his keen eyes were watching me closely His heavy eyebrows knitted into a frown and, stepping a pace nearer to Lee Chow, he spoke with apparent earnestness to the Chinese, but in tones so low that only Lee Chow could hear him.

It was in the same inaudible fashion that the Oriental replied, and if Hugh's words had been a protest, they apparently had had no effect, for Hugh went back to his place with impassive face and eyebrows still contracted, while Lee Chow looked after him with that enigmatic smile still curving his lips

Fear of the Chinese

By a mighty effort I kept from shivering again, and hoped that my face registered no inkling of what I was feeling. But seldom have I been the victim of such stark, unreasoning fear as I suffered at the prospect of this coming interview alone with Lee Chow.

Not that I feared any actual physical danger for myself, but terrifyingly fresh in my memory was the look on the face of the wounded henchman of Lee Chow when he spoke of me as "woman belonging to Lee Chow boss man"

There had been since then other indications slight as wind-blown straws to be sure but having terror for me that this high born friend of Hugh's secretly held that same bizarre idea concerning me I knew that, for all his accidental education and his years of association with Hugh he still had all the inhibitions of the Oriental concerning the comparative status of men and women in the universe

Hugh Invites Edith

Another turn of my memory kaleidoscope showed me Lee Chow's face covertly watching me through the draperies at the back of the little sitting room at The Larches I had not known how long he had been standing there, for my eyes had no sooner seen him standing behind the curtains than he was gone, but the idea of his watching me had obsessed me with the fantastic fear that he was planning some oriental deviltry which would further whatever insane theory he had as to my place in Hugh's life

"Polly complete and list's closed Harry Underwood announced in stentorian voice "Now, who's going with who whom who, whom and in which, what which, what cars?"

My nerves relaxed a bit at his nonsense and I came back to comparative sanity But the next instant they were taut once more as I saw Hugh Grantland step from his place again and come directly toward me

Surely I thought he would not risk Dicky's anger, with its unpleasant aftermath for me, by proposing that I rescind my decision not to go to the ocean and accompany him in his car! Yet I could think of no other reason for this sudden movement

But Hugh passed me without pausing and I heard him addressing Edith Fairfax, just behind me

"How about my runabout, Edith?" he asked easily Will you share it with me for this moonlight drive if I promise not to get sentimental?"

Mr. Moley's Decision.

There was bound to be a gilt-edged invitation to speculation in the resignation of Raymond Moley from President Roosevelt's official family. No amount of tactful explaining would have been sufficient to curb it.

Mr. Moley has been one of the most interesting of the new faces in Washington. Before the advent of General Johnson, in fact, he was given publicity in volume second only to that of the President.

He was identified closely with the "brain trust," that loosely organized group which will be credited with many of the ideas identified with the Roosevelt administration. He was its most conspicuous figure.

Circumstances forced him into a less pleasant kind of attention during the dying convulsions of the London conference. Publicity makes heroes and knaves; it made a knave of Mr. Moley when he started his trip to London to "rescue" the American delegation.

It helped to create friction between Mr. Moley and Mr. Hull, chief of the department in which the President's trusted friend had been given a desk. Counting one thing and another, it was publicity which finally made Mr. Moley appear to be a man who was making too much fuss for his position.

These are the things commonly known about Mr. Moley. Not so well known is one thing he mentions in his letter of resignation to President Roosevelt—the motive of his service. He declares he has but one desire—to teach people more about government. He saw an opportunity in the Roosevelt official family. He sees a better opportunity now in the editorship of a new magazine.

President Roosevelt praises his friend for the service he has given already and the greater service he is capable of giving. There are, in all probability, few Americans who would think naturally of any aspect of the Moley resignation other than the aspect of friction among presidential advisers, unless encouraged to do so. It is possible, nevertheless, that Mr. Moley has decided to take a new job for the same reason any other man might take a new job—greater opportunity. In this case, it seems only fair to take his explanation at face value.

The Indignity Of It.

Senator Copeland, chairman of the senate committee on racketeering, has made a truly remarkable suggestion. He proposes to provide for nationwide fingerprinting to facilitate apprehension of criminals and, even more remarkable, federal control of firearms, with an absolute prohibition against the manufacture and sale of machine guns.

These proposals will be greeted with a chorus of protest. A leading section of that chorus will be composed of those earnest persons who argue persistently that the best way to discourage employment of firearms by criminals is to place firearms in the hands of every man and woman willing and eager to shoot a criminal. They will protest that any effective restriction on the use of firearms penalizes the honest, fearless citizen for the sake of making it more difficult for gangsters and common criminals to become murderers.

There will be, also, a mighty yelp from those whose dignity is threatened by the proposal to fingerprint every citizen. They have something more to yelp about than the gunshooters, because it is difficult to understand at first sight why it should be necessary to keep fingerprint records of every citizen for the sake of keeping track of probably less than 1 per cent of the population. To take and keep on record the fingerprints of more than 100,000,000 people is a tremendous undertaking. It seems that the energy called for might be used to better advantage in amplifying the records of known criminals.

Senator Copeland believes that new and better ways must be found to deal with criminals. Obviously, like many other Democrats, he is willing to forget about states' rights if the federal government promises to do the job at hand better. Anticipating objections, he points out that fingerprinting should not be regarded as an accompaniment of criminality, but as a duty of citizenship. His words, explaining conclusions drawn from evidence placed before his committee, are the early sign of a new attitude toward criminals.

Sport, American Style.

No American girl has won more admiration as an athlete than Helen Wills Moody. For years she has been a brilliant figure in her role as foremost woman tennis player of the world. Within the last few years she has gained additional admiration as an attractive individual outside the sport in which she excels.

Mrs. Moody was defeated last Saturday in her attempt to win the national tennis title for the eighth time. Miss Helen Jacobs, an exceedingly capable player, was the victor. Miss Jacobs has been trying hard for years, but had been unable to make headway against her friend's superb game. Her own game has been improving, however; it was excellent last Saturday.

It happened unfortunately that Miss Jacobs' victory was marred by an injury to Mrs. Moody which physicians had warned her was serious enough to warrant cancellation of her match. So painful did this injury become that it was necessary to default the match in the third set, which Miss Jacobs was winning.

These are the facts of the incident. Yet, because amateur tennis has been blighted by a professional attitude and wedded to the gallery, there is a great hullabaloo. The most inexcusable part of the noise being made has something to do with a thinly disguised conviction that Mrs. Moody owed it to her opponent and to the gallery to go on playing, regardless of her own discomfort.

This is typical of sport, American style. Except in rare cases, it has become impossible for American men and women to devote themselves solely to the purpose of amusing themselves. They must play fiercely to win. If they are capable enough to warrant being placed on exhibition, they must play to the galleries. As amateurs, they are expected to play for nothing, but it is the patrons whose likes and dislikes they must consider.

Mrs. Moody and Miss Jacobs are the latest victims of the tigerish appetite of Americans for competition at any cost. Mrs. Moody, particularly, is deserving of sympathy. She has tumbled from the top to the bottom because she failed to please the crowd, choosing to quit playing when it wasn't fun any more.

NRA, New Phase.

With the beginning of a nationwide drive to enlist Americans under the blue eagle of NRA, the movement enters a new phase. Heretofore, it has existed largely as a set of theories in the minds of a relatively small number of people. Those people have been explaining as lucidly as possible what they believed could be accomplished with the national recovery act. But their influence was limited.

In his address to the more than a million Americans who set out this week to tell the country about NRA, General Johnson pointed out that ignorance is the drive's greatest handicap. He declared that in all the recovery administration's contacts with employers there had been not a single instance of direct refusal to cooperate because of disagreement with the principle of NRA. In every case, misunderstanding had caused trouble.

In this new phase of the recovery program, knowledge of the purposes and methods of the national recovery act will be spread as widely and accurately as possible. Added to weeks of intensive publicity concerning everything about the experiment will be millions of personal contacts with employers and consumers. Questions will be answered; fears will be quieted; difficulties will be ironed out. A colossal attempt will be made to unite the entire country under the banner of a common purpose.

Wisely, General Johnson is striving to play down the boycott weapon of the drive. The fact is, of course, that a boycott is a boycott, no matter by what name called. Nevertheless, there is a difference between a boycott carried on in the heat of mob hatred and a boycott quietly pursued under the excuse of discriminating between two classes. The important thing is that the NRA consumers will be cautioned to use moderation in their dealings with merchants who are not qualified to display blue eagles.

It is a great project, probably the greatest thing of its kind ever attempted. For many weeks it has been an idea which people alternatively commended and condemned according to their understanding of it and its probable effect on their lives. It has become now a concrete fact—part of the American manner of living.

Not for Love, But Principle.

New information from inflamed Europe tells of France's response to Nazi threats of absorbing Austria inside the hooked cross of Hitlerism. French politicians have hastened to demonstrate to their people and to Germans, indirectly, that they will let nothing intrude on their country's security.

This means, of course, that France has lined up with Italy to put the Nazis back in their place, as far as Austria is concerned. Next to join the opposition will be Great Britain. In all probability, its demonstration of intention will be less exciting than those of Italy and France have been. Its concern with pugilistic Hitlerism is fully as great as has been expressed anywhere in Europe, but its territory is in no immediate danger.

Had Germany been permitted to arm itself after the World war, there would be little question of its logical course of conduct under the circumstances surrounding the Austrian incident. To save its honor, it would be obliged to threaten war. But Germany, although armed far more heavily than provided in the Treaty of Versailles, has nothing but a militaristic spirit to sustain its bluff in the presence of potential enemies. France would be glad of an opportunity to chastise it again. The British have no love for it. Italy has taken a hostile attitude. The atmosphere is charged with danger, but there can be no clash while one of the contestants lacks arms.

It might be argued on the other side that Germany, had it been allowed to maintain its armaments in proportion to its importance, would not be the trouble-maker it has become. That is entirely problematical. Surely there would have been the salvation of Europe in this instance. The fire is laid for a conflagration. All that prevents the spark from catching, apparently, is Germany's defenseless condition. Italy and France do not speak for Austria because they love the Austrians, but because they must show Germans which governments are masters and which of them are short of that state.

Comment of the Press

GOOD OMEN.

There is an encouraging note in the report made for the nation which shows 1,500,000 families have been taken from the relief lists since March. This affords a reliable index to the trend of affairs.

It means that approximately 5,000,000 persons who looked to government charity as a source of subsistence have found another means of support and are again going it alone.

It indicates that progress is being made toward day when relief lists will again be but a memory. Although there are still 3,000,000 families accepting aid, the fact that there has been an improvement by one-third in five months is enough to stimulate hope. —Ohio State Journal.

GHOSTS OF MEMORY GROW FAT.

Face to face with resurrected reality, the thrills based on memory often languish and flop. So we gather from the revelations of a woman writing in the Cleveland Plain Dealer, after she had decorated herself to meet a beau who had been hers in a youthful day.

She had asked him to dinner after a telephone revelation. Memory dug up a ghost. "I dolled up for his eyes and trusted to experience to be able to take care of his hands . . . The bell rang and I went to the door. There he was—just like all the rest of them when they come from the tomb—fat, futile and forty."

Moral: Let memory hold fast to its illusions.—Toledo Blade.

EFFECTIVE TEAMWORK.

Men make acreage-reducing laws. Nature comes along and enforces them.—Buffalo Courier-Express.

EVIDENCE OF PROGRESS.

Daily Guide to Health

BY DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND.

Protection of Health Today.

Sometimes we complain about our generation, saying things now are not as they used to be. We look to the past for goodness, perfect conduct, and worth whileness.

When we read reports about crimes of violence and moral turpitude, it is natural to wonder if the world were not better in olden days. We sigh over the times.

But there are so many bright spots in the picture that we may well believe society is really progressing. Perhaps the better care of those who work with their hands is sufficient proof that the world is moving forward and upward.

A few weeks ago I visited a great factory in New England. Going to a city up there to attend a wedding, we found ourselves the guests of a charming lady. Our host asked me to visit his factory where sixteen hundred men and women are employed.

It is always interesting to me to study the physical and moral conditions under which human beings work. This establishment I found to be a model in its attention to sanitation and physical surroundings.

What I particularly have in mind to tell you about is a sign board displayed in a prominent place, making daily record of the accident record in that organization. On the occasion of my visit it read as follows:

"This factory was operated 1,658 days without lost time due to accident."

That statement gives evidence of the remarkable care afforded the workmen. Every possible device is used to protect against injury and disease. Prizes are offered the foreman who reports the highest record of freedom from accident.

The large, airy, sunshiny rooms contribute to the health of the employes. Mechanical ventilation carries away the fumes of chemicals and the vitiated air. First-aid facilities and constant medical supervision give further guarantee of physical well-being.

Were such precautions taken in olden days? They were not. Disabling and even fatal accidents were of almost daily occurrence in every shop and factory.

The modern organization of employes and the willingness of the owners to confer with them, has been another factor of progress. Really, the world is progressing. My host at the wedding convinces me of that truth.—Copyright, 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Daily Talk to Parents

By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH

FATHER AND DAUGHTER.

A girl's contact with her father is often more important than a boy's.

The feminine point of view which her mother represents is hers already and will be further intensified and varied through contact with other girls and with her teachers.

A census of happy marriages would probably show that a girl who had a close and happy comradeship with her father is likely to make a successful wife.

She learns sympathy and respect for men, and a leniency towards their weaknesses and foibles. There is in her none of the sex antagonism which mars and sometimes wrecks so many homes.

She looks upon men neither as saints nor as sinners, but as human beings, with peculiarities and failings differing from women's only in kind, and often with a compensating tolerance and breadth.

She is more likely to consider their tastes and comforts, since she realizes what a large part of their time is spent away from the ease and convenience of home. She does not require of a man the constant attention and care which some women consider their due.

It is amazing how many mothers fail to see the advantages for both father and daughter of such a close relationship, and how many in their eagerness to possess their husband's undivided allegiance will deliberately discourage or show jealousy of any comradeship between them.

If the mother has any real thought for her daughter's happiness she will make every effort to cultivate a close bond between her and her father, realizing for her own comfort that she is thereby strengthening her marriage ties, and binding her husband to herself more indissolubly than she would be by clutching hands of emotional greed.

Highlights of Ohio History

BY J. H. GALBRAITH

OHIO AND LITERARY FAME.

Ohio has much to her credit in other fields, but she has comparatively few names of persons famed in letters to whom she can lay claim, certainly if the moderns be excluded.

Such a list, of course, would contain the name of William D. Howells, a native of the state, though resident of Boston in his later days. Paul Lawrence Dunbar, the Negro poet, whose death occurred just as his title to fame seemed secure, would also be another on that list. He was born in Dayton and lived all of his short life there.

Others included would be John Hay, poet and historian, who lived in Cleveland; David R. Locke, the humorist; and T. Buchanan Read, the poet who wrote "Sheridan's Ride."

One thing certain: Ohio has not produced as abundantly in men noted for achievements in pure literature as she has in material things.

Once Upon —A Time—

Sketches from Ohio's Past

BY DENNIS R. SMITH

MIAMI UNIVERSITY BIRTHPLACE OF M'GUFFEY READERS

Miami university, established under grants older than the state of Ohio, is justly famous as the birthplace of the McGuffey Eclectic Readers, cornerstone of education in Ohio for half a century.

When John Cleve Symmes promoted the Miami purchase in 1794 by which he and his associates obtained patents to 311,682 acres of land between the Big Miami and Little Miami rivers, it was provided that one whole township must be reserved for the establishment and support of an academy of learning. When the tract was surveyed in 1787 such a township was designated but a revised drawing in the following year failed to include the academic township and parts of the original section were sold.

When Ohio became a state, a site in Oxford township, Butler county, outside the original Symmes grant, was designed, but action was held up until 1809 in the hope that a suitable location within the Miami territory might be found.

The year 1809 may be considered the date for the establishment of the university. At that time "missionaries" were sent to New England to raise money for the school. They met with meager success and the first school house was erected at a cost of $150. Work continued, however, and the first real college buildings were constructed between 1820 and 1824. The first president was inaugurated in 1825 with a student enrollment of nearly 100. At the present time the student and faculty lists of Miami university and its affiliated Oxford college and Western college for women exceed the resident population of the town.

William H. McGuffey, a young member of the faculty, supplemented his teaching by compiling the readers which, at one time, were in almost universal use in rural and village schools throughout the country.

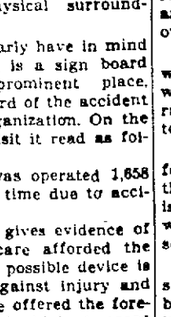
A Washington Daybook

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington, Aug. 30—Shifting of Sumner Welles from his desk at the state department as assistant secretary to Cuba as ambassador and then back again to his former post is something to spur speculation.



JEFFERSON CAFFERY

It may be that there'll be more of this sort of thing as the Roosevelt administration progresses with its foreign policy in the countries to the south.

Welles is to be relieved shortly at Havana by Jefferson Caffery, who served as assistant secretary of state, while he was about the task of calming the political waters in the island republic.

That the combination worked well, in state department eyes, is apparent. And now Ambassador Welles, with plaudits still hailing his accomplishments in Havana, will turn over the duty of finishing the job to Caffery, a career diplomat hand-picked by the department as "exactly the type of man needed in Cuba at the present time."

Welles' first duty back in the United States will be to start laying the foundation for the Pan-American conference which will be held in Montevideo in December.

The Roosevelt administration is counting much on the success of this conference. So important is it regarded, in fact, that Secretary Hull himself may head the American delegation.

The administration hopes to get off to a good start at Montevideo in launching the promised reciprocal trade agreements between this country and Latin-America promised by Mr. Roosevelt during the campaign.

Furtherance of what the President chooses to call his "good neighbor" policy will come in for much consideration as well.

In all of which Welles is expected to play a vital part. His desk at the state department may be vacant at frequent intervals in the future while our foreign policy in the south develops.

Insiders at the state department these days are giving much credit to Under-Secretary Phillips for the smoothness and precision with which events in Latin America are moving.

Phillips, they say, has the career diplomats in a better frame of mind than they have been for many years. A career man himself, he knows and understands their problems.

Talk has it that Phillips was appointed under-secretary because the President felt that the routine of the department should be in the hands of an experienced career man. Secretary Hull does not and could not be expected to look after the far-flung branches of the department.

That is Phillips' job. He is the executive officer of the state department—a job all its own.

New York Day by Day

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Aug. 30—Broadway has never quite understood the social and professional upshoot of Fred and Adele Astaire. Under all accepted standards they are a brother and sister act — "small-time hoofers" in jig jargon—who came out of Omaha to captivate London and New York.

O. O. McIntyre

Nimble dancers to be sure but not extraordinarily amazing. Astaire is partly bald, quite unattractive physically and would not look out of place jerking soda in a prairie town drug store. His sister was co-star in a musical written around her called "Funny Face," which describes her type of beauty.

Yet for years they have been distinctly box office attractions here and abroad. Adele left the team at the peak of her career to marry Lord Cavendish and as Lady Cavendish has been accepted in high circles in Britain. Fred's recent marriage to Phyllis Potter gives him a place in New York society.

The Astaires, while a definite part of Broadway, have never been of it. They have made it a point to trail with the right people. The brother was admitted to membership in the Turf and Field and Racquet clubs, a distinction few actors have attained. Astaires. Astaire!

The best yarn of the many managed and anticipated profit splitups of Primo Carnera and Max Baer is told by Boonville, Mo.'s sportwriting pride, Bill Corum of the Evening Journal. A poor widow in the neighborhood appeared at a relief bureau for charity. "Have you no assets whatever?" asked the investigator. "Only," she replied, "a small piece of Max Baer that my husband left me."

Irvin Cobb recently wired Harry Leon Wilson in Carmel-by-the-Sea: "We are organizing to hunt Moose in Canada. Will you join us?" In a few days the laconic reply: "Don't recall having lost any moose."

Perhaps the most accomplished moose hunters in New York are Rex Beach and Roy Howard. Also one of the best moose-callers in the Canadian woods is a fellow who had rarely been off Delancey street until nine years ago. He went up as a general handy man for a party of hunters and never came back.

Most every young writer starts to get away from the routine of the regular job and free lance. The best sum-up of such a quixotic venture for all was in a letter today from the late Chas. H. Battell who gave up a regular job and has not yet made the grade. "I had reckoned with the tricks of the pockets in trying to fly without financial wings."

I have wondered if other wanderers at night in a city's streets are drawn to hesitate before windows where there's music. Last night before an old brownstone on West 76th I halted. A pair of a woman's hands moved over the keys softly, caressingly, flowing in a leisurely way with a bar of Liszt wandering into chords towards a snatch of Schuman. Then quite suddenly a provoking little struggle with a cliff tune picked out with one finger. Whoever it was seemed to be composing a melody. I wondered if it would be Chopin or perhaps a bit of hi-de-di. All of a sudden there floated to the darkness a woman's voice—velvety, warm and moonlighty and the song she sang began "Grieve not, dear Love' as we often part." I might be old but say my eyes misted. But I carried on with a queer clutch in my throat. For something about the voice was pathetically poignant, a heart that was overflowing with overwhelming ache.

At a swanky dinner I counted 15 silver knives, forks, spoons and what-nots on either side of the plate. It recalled a fancy dinner back home—the unusual sort when Mace Robinson, the barber, catered. Mace was an ace at this. Anyway all the neighborhood forks and spoons, with little strings around them for remembering, had been borrowed. But Harry Maddy spilled the beans. Looking around he beamed: "Mighty pitiful. Everybody on this block will be eating with their fingers this evening."

And somehow I'm thinking of the excited fox terrier that used to race after every dog behind the picket fence of a big yard on our block. He seemed bristling with courage and desire to get out. One day the gate was left open and when the terrier streaked after a big old country dog he suddenly plopped out the entrance right on his enemy. He was so surprised he had a congestive chill.—Copyright, 1933, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

The Marry-Go-Round

BY HELEN ROWLAND.

DON'T ASK MY ADVICE!

Every day, I am receiving letters asking for my "advice" on some love-problem. Oh, lots of letters!

Alas, in the first place, this is not an "advice-column." And in the second place I should as soon toss a stick of dynamite at a pair of young lovers as to "advise" them concerning anything so serious as their hearts' happiness. I'm no love-wrecker! And no heart-expert!

Personally, I hate advice! If I must have it, I go to a doctor or a lawyer for it. People who are constantly telling you what you ought to do or how you ought to do it are the greatest bores on earth; and they are always steering you off your own track and usually into the wrong one.

The man whom a girl loves may not be "worthy" of her; but he may be the only man in the world who could make her happy. He may be deceiving her—but that may be the only way to get along with her.

The girl whom a man is courting may not be in love with him—but who knows that tomorrow she may not have a change of heart? And who can say that she may not make him happier than some girl who was too intensively in love with him?

I have neither the courage nor the self-confidence which it must require to tell any other human being how to run his or her own life. And my only advice to you is, don't take anybody's advice—except a doctor's or a lawyer's. And don't take theirs, in matters of love.

For, while a doctor can tell you what's the matter with your heart, he can't tell you what's in it. And, while a lawyer can tell you how to get a divorce, he can't tell you whether or not you want a divorce or whether or not it will make you happy.

This column does not pretend to give "advice." It is intended merely to amuse or to entertain; and if it rings the bell now and then, and gives you a mild chuckle, it has accomplished its whole mission.

A little philosophy may creep into this space, on "off days"; but most of what appears here is meant as pure satire. And nothing makes me quite so sad as to be taken seriously! I can tell you what men are like and what women are like and what life is like—because I've seen a lot of all three of them. But I can't tell you what you are like—or what will make you happy! So, please don't ask!—Copyright, 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Glimpses of the Past

TEN YEARS AGO.

It was Thursday, Aug. 30, 1923.

More than 2,000 Ohio Elks, including a large delegation from Marion, participated in a parade at Sandusky that marked the climax of the state organization's silver jubilee reunion.

The Lay association of the West Ohio conference, Methodist Episcopal church, opened its annual meeting here in connection with the general West Ohio sessions. The laymen, who held their meetings in Calvary Evangelical church, heard their president, Dr. J. A. Swanson of DeGraff, give the opening address.

Rudolph Isler of Prospect township won first prize at the state fair in the shorthorn calf club exhibit in the junior heifer class. Other prizes were also won by Marion county young people.

Harding High school's football squad reported to Coach Ray Sprout in the high school locker rooms for opening instructions. It was expected that the line would average at least 165 pounds to the man and the backfield 160 pounds. The season was to open on Sept 29 with a game against Lima Central.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

It was Saturday, Aug. 30, 1913.

The Canadian government and officials of the state of New York launched a final effort which was expected to result in the deportation of Harry Thaw back to New York from Canada, where he had fled after his escape from the Matteawan hospital for the criminal insane in New York state.

A becoming meeting was held by Day lodge No. 328, I. O. O. F. at LaRue. Twenty-four of the past grand officers of the lodge were in attendance.

News reports stated that Harry E. Vestal of Ada, formerly of Marion, was assured appointment as a member of the state moving picture censor commission.

Great excitement was stirred up along the route of Erie and Big Four railways when a Big Four gasoline car loaded with coal became detached from a train and ran wild the entire length of the main track of the Big Four from the east end yards to a point beyond the Kenton avenue crossing. Luckily the track was clear and the runaway car did no damage.

Miss Caroline E. Spidle and Earl A. Griffith were united in marriage by Rev. H. Livingston at his home on Silver street.

Veterans Sorry for Outburst from Long

By The Associated Press

MILWAUKEE, Wis, Aug. 30—Delegates to the national encampment of Veterans of Foreign Wars went on with their convention business today, inclined to dismiss Senator Huey Long's outburst against the press as a personal quarrel which did not reflect their opinion

Although the senator preceded his speech here yesterday with a caustic tirade against the Milwaukee newspapers because of the attention they had given the now famous cut over his left eye, the convention was on record as sorry it all happened.

Admiral Robert E. Coontz, commander in chief of the organization, in a statement issued last night through Barney Yanofsky editor of "Foreign Service" and publicity director for the encampment, expressed regret at the senator's attack

Lawyers of Nation Unite for War on Racketeers. Kidnapers.

Fred W Warner of Marion, now on his vacation, expected to be in Grand Rapids, Mich, when the American Bar association swung into the initial session of its annual convention in that city today.

A demand for a united front against kidnapers and racketeers was before the convention, passed on from the national association of attorneys general which concluded its sessions there yesterday, according to an Associated Press dispatch

The convention's attitude on the national recovery administration's program was a matter of speculation, members expressing widely different views regarding it.

It was suggested by the attorneys general that kidnapers be subject to the same penalties as murderers

FORD GIVEN UNTIL SEPT. 5 TO SIGN UP

not, nor could Ford put in a separate code

Asked for his reaction if Ford should exceed the regular code in the matter of hours and wages, Johnson asserted that that would not be compliance and added

"The only way you can get people to act together is to get them to agree to act together It does no make any difference what is done by an individual employer that he does on his own This is a great national compact among employers and everybody has got to agree to all the terms of that agreement in order to get the blue eagle

Johnson observed that should Ford sign the code and at the same time announce shorter hours and greater minimum wages, that that would not violate the code but rather "would be received with thanks"

Johnson said Ford would not be required to join the Automobile Chamber of Commerce if he signs the code but that he would have to open his books to the chamber, "to the extent that there is any opening of books." The chamber has been set up to administer the automobile code.

CROP MEETING ATTRACTS 100

Wheat Production Control Gathering Held in Prospect School Building.

One hundred Prospect township farmers attended last night's educational meeting on the government's wheat acreage reduction plan in the Prospect school building in charge of R. H Gilbert, emergency agricultural assistant for Marion county. Application blanks preparatory to making out reduction contracts were given 75 of the farmers.

Gilbert was assisted by Sam Lauer temporary community committeeman, and Edward Smith, vocational agricultural instructor at the Prospect school.

Gilbert today received from the federal department of agriculture a number of rulings on what may be done with wheat acreage kept out of production

Among the rulings were the following

Contracted acreages may be left idle, uncropped and untilled The space occupied by unplanted corn shock rows cannot be accepted as contracted acreages Wheat or rye should not be encouraged on contracted acres In case however they are used for planting in the fall as companion crops and provided light plantings are employed with the understanding that the crops be removed for hay for feeding farm work animals, individual exceptions may be granted by the county allotment committee. The crops must not be permitted to make grain crops.

Soybean hay and other short seasoned crops are permitted if fed to workstock or livestock producing products used on the farm. In case all uncropped land is permitted to go to weeds it should be understood that the noxious weeds must be mowed before they go to seed

Winter wheat planted in the spring as a companion crop and not permitted to make a grain crop does not violate the terms of the contract. This should be taken up as a special case with the county wheat allotment committee

Tonight farmers of Tully and Scott townships will meet at 8 30 at the Martel schools in another of the meeting series.

Simpson Cross Pleads Guilty To Charge of Fraud.

Simpson Cross 25, of near Marion, was sentenced to 60 days in the Columbus workhouse this morning by Municipal Judge William R. Martin on a fraud charge

Cross accused of short changing two Oakland Heights merchants, had pleaded not guilty to the charge but changed his plea to guilty this morning. He also was fined the costs of the case, which officials said probably will be added to his time in the workhouse

H F Hildreth, 30, of West Columbia street, arrested as Cross' companion the night of the alleged short changing activities, has not been charged with an offense yet. His automobile is being held pending decision by authorities whether he was an accomplice Hildreth contends that Cross asked him to drive him into south Marion to see some friends and that he was unaware of Cross' activities.

Ohio Swings Ahead in NRA Campaign

By The Associated Press

Ohio swung ahead at full speed today in its crusade to bring employers and consumers under the blue eagle banner of the NRA.

On the quiet village streets of the farming areas and boulevards of the metropolitan centers blue eagle consumer signs appeared in thousands of windows as volunteer workers continued their house to house canvass.

In the industrial towns, particularly, local NRA officials jotted down new employment totals showing the gain in factory payrolls Ohio NRA headquarters in Cleveland the records showed nearly three quarters of a million workers already are under the NRA.

75,000 Back at Work

Miss Mary E Woods, state NRA director, furnished a clue to the results of the re-employment drive when she declared all signs pointed to the return of 75,000 jobs since July 31 At a rally in Cleveland last night she said a partial survey in Cleveland showed an employment increase of 12 per cent

Two Ohio cities came in for special mention at Washington. The rate at Cleveland has been estimated at 1,000 new jobs a day.

In Columbus, 1,500 workers had signed up 10,000 consumers since Monday

At Cincinnati, the Building association set as its goal the creation of 15,000 jobs in the building trades

Directors of the canvass at Tiffin said more than 3,000 homes were marked with blue eagle banners Wooster officials expected to reach 100 per cent cooperation within a few days Eight hundred campaigners at Canton signed up 10,000 consumers

Other Cities Active

A thousand workers at Ashtabula continued their campaign after getting 4,500 consumers' signatures Sixty-five members of the American Legion at Alliance started the canvassing there. At Findlay NRA officials said 662 employes had gone under the NRA for a mark of 99 per cent cooperation. At Fremont 350 workers had signed up 2,000 consumers

The Ohio NRA headquarters added 2,410 agreements affecting 19,284 workers to its totals yesterday, bringing the statewide total signed since July 31, to 117,521 employers with combined payrolls of 743,759 names

Johnson Takes Field in Drive

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug 30—Intensified striving went today into the mass movement to reemploy jobless workers and create billions of new purchasing power under the sign of NRA's blue eagle

Hugh S Johnson after being tied to his desk for days on end by critical problems of the industrial control movement himself took the field to deliver at Boston a major address of this week's windup campaign for plastering the country's store windows with the red, white and blue poster of cooperation.

"We can scarcely realize that perhaps 2,000,000 have been removed from the ranks of the unemployed and are again self-supporting citizens," was Johnson's estimate as he spurred on the door-to-door work of the volunteer army of a million and more men and women busy up and down the land explaining the NRA agreement and obtaining pledges of support.

Using the 2,000,000 figure, Johnson said it represented at least $80,000,000 more in pay envelopes each week. But not until after Labor day, with its objective of 6,000,000 new jobs, will the NRA begin to assay whether its sweep netted enough reemployment and wage boosting to give the Roosevelt recovery program its desired momentum.

Johnson left his office as labor hailed an end to non-union labor in bituminous coal fields and set about plans to unionize workers in automobile plants. The recovery chieftain also said bluntly that Henry Ford either would subscribe to the automobile code or "not get the blue eagle."

"I think maybe the American people will crack down on him by putting their blue eagles on other cars," Johnson told newsmen regarding the automobile magnate.

Forty five retail lumber dealers from Marion and nearby counties discussed their proposed national code, now before the government for consideration, at a meeting in Hotel Harding last night, but made no effort to take concerted action under the code until after a meeting two weeks from last night

It was indicated in the discussion that retailers anticipate standardization of retail lumber prices on the basis of the prices lumbermen are required to pay manufacturers under the national lumber manufacturers' code, now in operation The standardized prices probably will vary in different areas according to freight rates and other variations in overhead, dealers said

V. W Peck of Cardington, district chairman, reported developments of negotiations of a committee of the Ohio Retail Lumbermen's association with national NRA administrators in Washington regarding the retail lumber dealers' code Stanley Acree of Delaware is secretary of the district group

Film Notables Frightened by Gang Slaying

By The Associated Press

HOLLYWOOD Cal Aug 30—Frightened Hollywood notables were reported adding guards to their homes today while Los Angeles police declared war on gangland and named four men as the suspected assassins of Harry Mackley and Frank Keller former New York and St Louis hoodlums, Monday night

Officers said the double slaying had thrown a scare into many movie colony leaders who feared racketeers were seeking a foothold in filmland Only recently Lupe Velez, Mexican screen star, notified police she had received a note threatening the kidnaping of her adopted daughter and had sent the child to a school in the the southern republic as a precaution.

While Chief of Police James E. Davis organized a special "gangster squad" to ferret out hoodlum suspects and seek their deportation from the city, Chief of Detectives Joseph Taylor named Charles Sherman, Morris Solivinsky Henry Sherman and Jack Weinstein as suspects in the Mackley-Keller slaying and said he would ask murder complaints against the quartet.

The detective chief said the slayings were an act of reprisal for the killing of Morris Moll, also known as Morris Marks, in New York last June

Both Mackley and Moll were wanted in Los Angeles for the murder of David Antink in 1929 Antink was shot down after he had identified five men as those who had robbed him of $25,000

Three men walked into a fashionable restaurant Monday night and without warning fired repeatedly at Mackley and Keller. A fourth man and a woman waited in an automobile outside the restaurant and drove the trio from the scene, officials said.

THREE HELD IN CHILD STEALING

Columbus Father and Two Others Lodged in City Prison Here.

Accused of taking three colored children from their mother here last night, three Columbus colored men, one of them the father of the children, were arraigned in municipal court this morning on child stealing charges.

The men, Horace W Scroggins 33, the father Henry Abney, 35, and Harry Anderson, 45, pleaded not guilty and will have a preliminary hearing Friday at 10 a m Judge William R Martin set bond at $1 000 each

Mrs. Willa Mae Scoggins of 181 Edwards street, mother of the children, said her estranged husband came to the neighborhood of her home last night, talked to the children, who were playing along the street and asked them to go with him to a picture show Mrs. Scoggins said she consented to let them go but kept watch until they disappeared in the vicinity of the Marion Steam Shovel Co.

Meeting a patrolman, Mrs Scoggins asked him if he had seen anything of the children and the man and was told that there had been a Columbus car in that vicinity carrying two men and two of the children

Further investigation led to the arrest of the three men as they were driving through Delaware with the three children

Scoggins, a porter on the Columbus-Pittsburgh run of the Pennsylvania railroad, has been under court orders to provide support for the children, who were put into the custody of the mother following court action some time ago Scoggins, authorities said intended to send the children to his mother in Arkansas in order not to have to make the support payments

Abney told Judge Martin this morning he had not known of Scoggin's intentions but had been hired to drive him to Marion.

AFRICAN LIFE TOPIC OF TALK TO ROTARY

Wesleyan Professor Tells of Customs, Criticising White Man's Attitude.

A description of African native life and tribal customs was given members of the Marion Rotary club yesterday at the weekly luncheon meeting in Hotel Harding by Charles Coulter, professor of sociology at Ohio Wesleyan university in Delaware.

Failure of the Africans to develop economically is due largely to their tribal life, superstitions and witchcraft, which subdue any traits for social or economic improvement, Professor Coulter said

The speaker also criticized white persons who visit Africa or are in business there, for their hypocritical attitude of preaching one thing and doing another. This bewilders the natives, the professor said, and prevents the upbuilding of international goodwill.

Next week, the club will meet on Thursday instead of Tuesday, and will have a program ramindful of circus day, that being the day of the Hagenbeck-Wallace circus' performance here. Rex E. Rossell, production manager of the circus, will be a guest and will give a short talk. Jess Adkins, head of the circus, also has been invited.

Pohler's Bludgeon Gives Presbies Triumph Over Kappas

CHURCH CHAMPIONS BEAT COMMERCIAL TITLE HOLDERS, 3-2

Losers First Team To Be Eliminated from Little World Series.

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor, The Star

That big sludgeon which Milt Pohler wields in the interests of the First Presbyterian softball team yesterday blasted the Kappa fraternity right out of the running for the city diamond championship. With both teams having lost one previous game and battling for the right to continue in the Little World series, the Presbies racked up a 3-2 triumph and thus retained the right to continue their fight for titular recognition.

It was Pohler's hefty war club which accounted for all three of the victor's tallies. The husky shortstop banged out a single in the first frame which sent Oberlander, who had drawn a walk a moment earlier, scampering across the payoff slab and then came back in the sixth frame to pole a resounding home run clout into center field to score himself and Bacon, who was already perched on the first base bag waiting only for someone to push him the rest of the way around the circuit.

It was pretty much of a ball game all the way. Roscoe Rank and Don Shoemaker did the twirling, Rank giving up seven hits while Shoemaker limited the losers to four. Shoemaker's slow ball was working beautifully. The Presbie twirler struck out five batters and of the five, four struck out swinging at slow balls.

Shoemaker handed out five bases on balls, his generous nature asserting itself for the most part in the seventh frame when he walked the bases full. Rank was stingier with his walks, handing out only one, that to the first man to face him in the first inning. Ironically enough, that one walk paved the way for the first tally, just enough to lose the ball game for Rank.

GASCO VS. EPWORTH

The Gasco club of the Industrial league and the Epworth Seniors of the No. 2 Sunday school league will clash today at 6 p. m. at Lincoln park in the fourth Little World series game. Both teams won their first game last week.

The Presbies wasted no time in swinging their war clubs into action in the first inning. Oberlander, as has already been recorded, drew a walk to start the uprising. Price couldn't advance him but Bacon sent him to second with a scorching single to center. This set the stage for Pohler and he slapped a hit into centerfield which allowed Oberlander to scamper home.

With that one brief flurry over the game quickly settled into a twirling duel, neither flinger having much of an advantage. That one run loomed plenty large until the fifth inning when Manager Marion Hinklin of the Kappas took matters in his own hands and proceeded to put his purple and white clad combine back on even terms by driving a home run against the left field fence. The bases were deserted.

Visions of a tie game were bobbing before the eyes of the something like 1,300 fans after Hinklin turned in his circuit drive but it didn't take long for the Presbyterians to correct this situation.

Pohler Connects

Bacon, the first man up in the sixth, laced a single into center. Pohler, who had already caused plenty of damage to the Kappa cause, worked the count to three and two, took one good look at the next ball which Rank tossed straight through the groove and larruped it far into the center field regions. When Pohler rode that ball out of the lot, he rode the Kappa hopes for a city championship right out with it. The Commercial league champs made a desperate bid to retrieve their fortunes an inning later but the two-run lead was too much to overcome.

Shoemaker put himself in a dangerous hole in the seventh when he walked the bases full but there were two men out and the Kappas watched the third out marked up with runners on all three hassocks. All dressed up and nowhere to go, so to speak.

Freddie (Handy Andy) Vestal, who plays anywhere the Presbyterians happen to need him, held down the initial sack against the Kappas and did an excellent job of it. He registered 12 putouts and the way which he handled some of the throws from his mates definitely stamped him as one of the city's better first sackers.

RECORD BREAKER

Miss Enid Wilson, England's queen of the fairways, opened fire on the American women's national golf championship by shooting a 76, lowest qualifying score in the meet's history, to take medal honors in the tournament at Highland Park, Ill. (Associated Press photo).

BRITON "DISGUSTED" WITH GOLFING GAME

Enid Wilson Announces Intention of Quitting Competition Shortly.

By The Associated Press

HIGHLAND PARK, Ill., Aug. 30—Disgusted and "through" with competitive golf, but fired with a burning ambition to show the world she can take the title back with her, Enid Wilson of England today joined 15 American stars in the drive for the national women's championship at Exmoor.

The American title was her final goal in the game she said she was tired of except for an occasional enjoyable round, and while four of America's "big five" of feminine golf still were in the championship drive, she thought she would add the title to her collection of three successive British crowns.

Miss Wilson was the talk of the tournament, not only because she broke the qualifying record and scored an easy triumph over Mrs. R. C. Lake yesterday to enter the second round but because of a stinging rebuke against the average woman golfer and the hero worshippers, who slap them on the back and fete them.

FUNERAL FRIDAY FOR NOTED GRID LEADER

Major Frank Cavanaugh, Retired Coach, Loses Last Battle.

MARSHFIELD, Mass., Aug. 30—Funeral services for Major Frank W. Cavanaugh, noted football coach, will be held Friday amid the simple surroundings of his South Shore home.

"Cav," one of the most beloved football coaches of a generation, died yesterday after a courageous battle.

Failing health and fast-dimming eyesight, brought on in great part by World war wounds, forced him to give up football coaching for the quiet of his Marshfield chicken farm.

"Cav's" football career began back in 1897 when he was an all-American football end at Dartmouth. In 1899, he became the "baby" of American football coaches by accepting a post with the University of Cincinnati. In 1911 he became head coach at Dartmouth, where he stayed until 1916, when his coaching days were interrupted by the World war. He never fully recovered from wounds received when shrapnel tore his face away.

In 1919 he became coach of Boston college and eight years later of Fordham. He retired last year.

BUCKEYES ADVANCE IN SOFTBALL MEET

By The Associated Press

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 30—Five Wisconsin teams remained in the running today in the softball world series, while only two out-of-state squads were counted among the survivors.

B. Peck & Son of Milwaukee, went into the semi-final round yesterday by eliminating Clearwater, Fla., 11 to 2, and will not get into competition today.

The Alliance Trails Ends advanced by submerging St. Petersburg, Fla., 9 to 0, in a game which was scoreless for five innings, but which turned into a route when the Buckeyes scored 7 runs in the sixth and two in the seventh. Both had but three hits, but numerous passes and a home run with the bases full accounted for the Ohio runs.

COLUMBUS CLINCHES PLACE IN PLAY-OFF

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 30—Columbus has won its chance of playing in the American association championship playoff, but its probable opponent, Minneapolis, today still lacked two victories of clinching the western division leadership.

The Red Birds today had 18 games left on their regular schedule, and could lose all of them and still lead the division. Indianapolis, the runner-up in the eastern half of the league, has 16 remaining games and no chance of passing Columbus. Minneapolis will have St. Paul out of the running by winning only two more games.

Minneapolis yesterday edged closer to the playoffs by handing Milwaukee its sixth straight beating, 3 to 1. Joe Hauser continued to swing for his sixty-third home run, but again failed to collect.

Louisville staged rallies in the eighth and ninth inning to defeat Columbus, 9 to 7 in a night game.

Bob Logan pitched four-hit ball and Indianapolis backed it up with a 13-hit attack on Ralph Winegarner to defeat Toledo, 8 to 2.

By The Associated Press

TORONTO, Aug. 30—The Dominion's greatest swimming spectacle, the 15-mile marathon of the Canadian national exhibition, drew a field of 149 to the starting line in Lake Ontario today.

The United States furnished 85 nominees and the co-favorite in the person of George Samuel Blagden of Memphis, winner of the event a year ago.

The race was to get under way at 11 a. m. (Marion time) if the temperature of the water reached the minimum of 62 degrees.

BRILLIANT TWIRLING OF HUBBELL SAVES LEAD FOR GIANTS

New York Ready for Crucial Series With Rampaging Braves.

By The Associated Press

With the start of their crucial six-game series with the Boston Braves only one day away, the New York Giants today still held a sixgame lead, thanks to Carl Hubbell's pitching. But for another equally brilliant hurling feat on the part of a New York cast-off, Bill Walker, the advantage of the league leaders probably would be still greater.

Hubbell, hurling the Giants to their first victory in four games blanked the Cardinals in the first game of a double-header yesterday with five hits for a 3 to 0 decision. Walker, who had not won a game since May 22, turned the tables and, also pitching five hit ball shut out the Giants 2 to 0 to give the Cardinals the second game.

Walker not only matched Hubbell's performance in every respect except strike outs but went him one better in hitting, driving out a home run.

The two losing pitchers, Wild Bill Hallahan and Fred Fitzsimmons, pitched good enough ball to win most games. Hallahan allowed only six hits and Fitzsimmons handed out only four.

The Chicago Cubs remained in third place, a game back of the Braves, who were idle, by splitting a double-header with the Brooklyn Dodgers. Max Carey's men won the first on power, 13 to 5, but fell before Lon Warneke's pitching in the second, losing 6 to 2.

The Pittsburgh Pirates advanced within one-half game of the Cubs by trouncing the Phillies for the third straight time. The score was 4 to 1.

Nats' Lead Cut

The Washington Senators' lead in the American league was trimmed to eight games as the Yankees defeated the Detroit Tigers 11 to 9 and the league leaders divided a twin bill with the Cleveland Indians. The Senators won the first 2 to 1 in 10 innings but dropped the second, 7 to 2.

Treating four Athletic pitchers roughly, the White Sox pounded out 11 to 5 triumph over Philadelphia. Dick Barrett, Rube Walberg, Bob Coombs and LeRoy Mahaffey were the victims of the Pale Hose's 16-hit attack.

The Boston Red Sox and St. Louis Browns split a bargain bill. The six-hit pitching of Bob Weiland gave the Sox the second game 9 to 4, after the Browns had taken the opener 10 to 8.

STOCK PRICES DRIFT LOWER

Gold Shares Lead Way for Downward Skid on Big Board.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 30—Financial markets apparently decided today that "all that glitters is not gold."

At any rate, stocks and staples generally showed a reversal of their late rallying tendencies of yesterday following an official communique letting down some of the bars on the recently stringent gold embargo. Equities, grains and other commodities failed to see anything particularly bullish in the gold ruling and prices drifted irregularly lower under moderate liquidation and renewed short selling. The trading volume expanded a bit on the decline in stocks. The dollar improved in foreign exchange dealings. Bonds were narrow and dull.

Gold mining shares, paradoxically, led the way down with Homestake dropping 21 points before recovering all but 6. Alaska Juneau, Dome, McIntyre Porcupine, Cerro De Pasco and U. S. Smelting were off 1 to around 3. The Alcohols, including U. S. Industrial, American Commercial and National Distillers failed to respond to the repeal vote in Washington state and lost 1 to 3 or more at one time. Allied Chemical sagged more than 3, and American Telephone, U. S. Steel, Case, American Can, Santa Fe, Union Pacific and New York Central were down 1 to 2. The oils received some support. Standard of New Jersey, Atlantic Refining, Houston and others recovering fractions to round a point.

With market opinion uncertain as to just how much, if any, inflation was portended in the gold decree, many traders who bought stocks yesterday for a quick turn decided, in the face of various uncertainties, to relinquish them and wait for the sizeable reaction which has been expected in some quarters.

GRAIN MARKET IS IRREGULAR

Prices Fluctuate Nervously but Trading Is Strong at Close.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 30—Grains fluctuated nervously today in relatively light and easily influenced market, but finished strong.

Wheat skidded around over a range of more than six cents a bushel and by its gyrations pulled all other grains up and down. A mixed opening in wheat was followed by sharp breaks of three cents or more, but these were later recovered. Liquidation of September contracts, before the first delivery date, Friday was the chief unsettling influence. The general run of news was bullish, but was of little consequence. Corn and oats were depressed and rallied by wheat action.

Wheat closed strong and near the high point of the day at gains of 2¾ to 2⅞ cents, compared with yesterday's finish.

Corn was also strong and 1¾ to 2⅛ cents higher.

Oats, ¾ to 1¾ up, rye, 1¾ advanced, and provisions ranging from 25 cents lower to 8 cents higher.

Morrow County School Transfers Are Opposed

Protests Recorded as Board Holds Hearing on Proposed Changes.

Special to The Star

MT. GILEAD, Aug. 30—The transfer of a number of rural school districts in Morrow county proposed by the state department of education was tabled by the county board of education Tuesday after an open meeting held at the courthouse here. Two hundred residents of the affected districts appeared at the board meeting to protest the proposed transfers. A majority of those present were from Congress township.

Under the plan proposed by the state department the Mt. Gilead consolidated district would be augmented by two-thirds of Gilead township rural district, one-half of Harmony rural, a small part of Franklin, and approximately one-third of Congress township rural.

Districts Affected

A part of Gilead rural would go to Cardington and the remainder of the district to Edison. One-third of Harmony would be placed in the Bennington district and the remainder in South Bloomfield or Sparta, with the exception of a small part to go to Chesterville. Nearly all of Franklin township rural would be put in the Chesterville district.

One-half of the Congress township district would go to Perry township or Johnsville and approximately one-fourth to Washington township.

Completion of the consolidation would eliminate 22 of the 33 one-room rural schools remaining in Morrow county and was proposed by the state department as the only means by which Congress Franklin and Harmony districts could meet their obligations including tuition for high school pupils now going to consolidated schools outside their districts.

The storm of protest which developed at the meeting included charges by Arthur Heishner of Congress township and J. P. Watson, president of the Franklin township board that the county board had attempted to railroad the transfers through without consulting the affected rural districts. Henry Lepp, president of the county board, pointed out that they had given no notice of the meeting because some of the board members were not aware of the proposed plan and that no action had been taken. The board is not required under the law, he said, to give any public notice until they approve a transfer.

Districts Protest

Protests were registered by residents of all the affected districts and the board will take no action until next Saturday when the next regular meeting will be held. T. E. Gordon, a member of the board and a resident of Harmony township stated that he did not personally favor splitting up the rural districts but that under existing conditions it might be necessary to enable such districts to meet their financial obligations.

The boards governing the Mt. Gilead and Johnsville consolidated schools closed the high schools to pupils of other districts until tuition due is paid and Chesterville is expected to take the same action this week. Unless Congress township and Franklin township residents accept the transfer their funds will, it was stated, be insufficient to pay the tuition and maintain their one-room rural schools.

LEGISLATURE BALKS AT PLAN TO RECESS

one cent toward the support of the parochial schools" inasmuch as the amount they are requesting would not represent the total new taxes to be paid by Catholics

A resolution calling for a three weeks' recess while the taxation committee sought new tax plans was passed by the senate but the house tabled the proposal without a record vote As a result both houses must remain in session with little or no work to do while the committee continues its hearings

Defeat of the resolution followed much wrangling featured by caustic criticism of house members by Republican Floor Leader Charles H Jones of Jackson county His remarks came after several representatives had charged there had been undue delay in providing funds for education Governor White has estimated the requirements for 1933-34 at $57 000 000

"Not one of the speakers who has been urging action has appeared before the committee to give us his views on a constructive plan," said Jones The trouble now is the committee doesn't like the governor's program That program calls for various new taxes

Leading the attack on the recess plan, Representative Robert F Kaser, Democrat of Shelby county declared "utilities lobbyists' opposing additional levies on their earnings were forcing delay He added the committee could prepare a program in a one day executive session.

Program Is Asked

Representative John F McCrystal, Democrat of Erie county declaring that three weeks' recess would result in a new effort to force the sales tax asked the assembly to call on the governor to submit a program that might be quickly approved

Immediate action on the school question was urged by Representatives William Elwell of Cuyahoga county and William McClimon of Miami county Republicans and Theodore Kemp Jr, of Licking county Democrat

Passed yesterday and sent to the governor was a bill to repeal the Lowery amendment to the general appropriations act The amendment would require state aid school districts to reduce property tax by the amount they receive from the state through the liquid fuel and intangible tax revenues

Repeal of the amendment was urged by Governor White as part of his school program
